- You could also approach a magistrate directly or the police. Police in turn will help you to forward the case either to a PO or a magistrate to prepare a DIR.

Other options

- Call the toll-free helplines i.e., 100 (Police), Child Helpline (1098), 181 (Women's Helpline).
- For free legal aid, approach the District Legal Services Authority of India at the district level.
- Should you feel the need to discuss a case of domestic violence, visit your One Stop Centre (OSCs) located in each district
- You can also visit the Gramin Mahila Kendras (GMK) by NEN which are registered as service providers by the Nodal Agency. The GMKs offer free psycho-social care and counselling to aggrieved women and will also fill up the DIR for a case of DV.
